

FOUR RUSSIAN-TYPE JET FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN, FIFTH PROBABLY DESTROYED, IN THE GREATEST AIR BATTLE OF KOREAN WAR; WHIRLING DOGFIGHT AT 600 M. P. H.

18 to 28 Red Interceptors

Thunderjets

Battle Begins After Thun-

Rake Sinuiju Airfield

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEAD-QUARTERS, Korea, Jan. 23.—(INS)

At least four Russian-type MIG-15 jet fighters were shot down, a fifth probably destroyed and two others probably damaged today in the greatest air battle of the Korean war.

The whirling dogfight, waged at speeds exceeding 600 miles per hour, broke out over Korea's northwest frontier city of Sinuiju and involved 18 to 28 communist jet interceptors against 24 American F-84 Thunderjets. None of the F-84s was damaged.

The Soviet-made MIGs streaked into the attack from airfields at the Chinese city of Antung across the Yalu river from Sinuiju.

The screaming sky battle many thousands of feet above the earth's surface lasted 30 minutes.

It began after the Thunderjets swept low to rake the Sinuiju airfield where reconnaissance aerial photographs had shown a number of communist planes parked on the ground.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Fifth Air Force commander, issued a preliminary announcement that four of the MIGs were definitely downed, a fifth probably destroyed and two others probably damaged.

He said complete evaluation of the results of the spectacular sky engagement would have to wait development of motion picture films taken from the participating American planes.

The last of the 24 Thunderjets had swept the Sinuiju airfield when a vanguard flight of four MIGs swooshed south over the Yalu and attacked the American aircraft.

A "top cover" flight of four Thunderjets, led by Lt. Joseph Kratz of South Milwaukee, Wis., promptly pounced on the enemy interceptors.

"We saw the MIGs taking off from the Antung airfield just across the river," said Lt. Kratz, "and we were just waiting for them to start something."

"When they dived in, we knew we had them."

"I picked out the number three man in the flight. I closed into the firing range and let him have a long burst."

"My machine gun bullets went right down the gutter of his tailpipe and he burst into flames. He exploded with a terrific flash."

"I then kicked my rudder and got a short burst into the center section of the number four man. I was maneuvering to fire again when tracers like red golf balls began going by my canopy and I broke off."

Capt. William Slaughter of Lexington, Ky., confirmed Kratz's "kill" and "probable kill." Slaughter bore into a second flight of MIGs, together with Capt. Allan McGuire of Clarkville, Tex., riding off Slaughter's wing.

McGuire confirmed that Slaughter knocked down one MIG and Mc-Guire himself got another one of the enemy jets. McGuire said the MIG he hit "performed a couple of rolls, then dived at terrific speed, then climbed."

PLEADS FOR FIREMEN TO KEEP PERSONNEL

Warns Against Disorganizing

MEMBERS JOIN SERVICE

PERKASIE, Jan. 23.—"I know of one fire company that has lost five of its young men to the armed forces and every effort must be made to keep up the personnel of the fire companies," William L.
Stackhouse, county detective and well-known former head of the volunteer firemen of the county told a meeting of the Bucks County Fire Police Association here a few evenings ago.

Warning about disorganizing more than 6,000 volunteer firemen throughout the county, Fire Marshal Robert Graham, of Chalfont, and Stackhouse emphasized the importance of "active firemen, whether fire policemen or not, remaining fire fighters through the Civilian Asserting that there must be no conflict in serving "two masters," Fire Marshal Graham said: "Fire-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Communist China is willing to agree to a limited cease-fire in Korea at the first meeting of a seven-power conference on Far Eastern problems, India informed the United Nations Assembly's Political Committee yesterday. The offer, demanding that "definite affirmation" of Peiping's right to sit in the United Nations "be ensured," came in the form of answers to undisclosed questions asked by the Indian Ambassador.

Peiping said it would "advise" Chinese "volunteers" to return home if other foreign troops were being withdrawn from Korea. Sir Bene-gal R. Rau, who made the disclosure, won a two-day recess of the committee over strong opposition of the United States, which termed the move an effort to divide the free world.

Washington found the new proposition unacceptable and wanted to know what a "limited" cease-fire meant and how far Sir Bene-gal spoke for Peiping. The only certain result seemed to be a delay on the United States demand to brand Communist China an aggressor.

Britain, disliking an outright condemnation of Peiping, looked hopefully to the new proposition.

Swift reinforcement of United States troops in Germany and new heavy arms were urged on General Eisenhower by officials in that country.

General Bradley, urging Congress to lower the draft age to 18, said current military plans would protect the country from invasion and "complete disaster" by bombing. We need the reciprocal trade program for our own security, Secretary Acheson told a House committee in asking for a three-year extension.

The nomination of Eric Johnston to head the Economic Stabilization Agency was unanimously approved by a Senate committee. Drastic rent controls "for the duration" were demanded by the A. F. L.

Stockton Resident Dies at Age of 81

STOCKTON, N. J., Jan. 23.—Death came this morning at her residence, here, for Mrs. Anna Louise Mohr, 81, (nee Fausel). Mrs. Mohr was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., but had resided in Stockton for 34 years. She had been in ill health 3½ years, was a member of Stockton Presbyterian Church and the women's auxiliary of that church.

Mrs. Mohr was the widow of John Louis Mohr, and is survived by one son, J. Fred Mohr; two daughters, Mrs. Douglass Moore, Miss Helen E. Mohr, Stockton; and the following brothers and sisters, William H. Fausel, Hollis Gardens, L. I. N. Y.; George Fausel, Jam-malca, L. I.; Mrs. George Leyon-mark, Buffalo, N. Y.; and one grandchild, Miss Jean Moore, Stockton.

Funeral service will be Friday at 2:30 p. m., at Stockton Presbyterian Church. Friends may call Thursday evening at her late residence. Interment will be in Rosemont (N. J.) Cemetery. Clergymen will be the Rev. Brian H. Clea-worth, Stockton Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. F. O. Hathaway, former pastor there.

CHART NEW APPROACH, MENTAL HEALTH AID

Program for Easing Mental Health Problems In Pennsylvania

EDUCATIONAL PLAN

Following is the first of three exclusive articles by International News Service detailing a new Statewide program to attack mental illness via preventive measures and early treatment.

By Al Spivak

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(INS)— A sweeping new approach to easing mental health problems is being charted today in Pennsylvania.

Educational campaigns to foster a mental health outlook in individuals will be the keystone of the attack.

The State Mental Health Bureau is laying the groundwork for a modernization of methods by placing additional emphasis on prevention and early treatment so that cure will not be necessary later.

"With all the agitation since the last war and with glaring attention focused on mental hospitals we have had to decide on steps to eliminate the necessity of building more hospitals," said State Mental Health Commissioner Hilding A.
Bengs.

"We have evolved a four-point program," he said, "with education as the first step, followed by early treatment in institutions."

The other three, said Bengs, are:
(1) Grants-in-aid to community mental health clinics.

(2) Promotion of State-subsidized

Kiwanis Dinner Speaker
Will Be Dr. W. H. Mohr

LANGHORNE, Jan. 23.—Dr. Walter H. Mohr, of the George School faculty, Newtown, will speak to members of the Bucks County Lincoln Highway Kiwanis Club, this evening. Dinner will be served at 6:30 in the American Legion country club home. The subject is to be "Training for Citizenship." The function of a secondary school will be under discussion.

Dr. Mohr recently received two honors from the National Council for Social Studies. He was chosen on a new "German Committee" for the council, which will study German history books now in use in junior and senior high schools. He was also appointed to a three-year term on the advisory board of "Social Education," the journal of the National Council.

Members are privileged to invite fathers of pupils to attend.

The 35th anniversary program will be in charge of the Kiwanis education committee of which E. J.
Spinelli is chairman. Samuel J.
Leeper, Morrisville, will be inducted as a club member.

gerous Habit-Forming Drug, Ranks First in Choice of Confirmed Addicts—Professional Narcotics Peddlers Hang Around Schools.

In this second article of a series reporting on the frightening increase of drug addiction among adolescents in large cities throughout the country, Malcolm Johnson tells of some of the horrible effects of such addiction. He cites in

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS)— Irving Greenfield, acting head of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics in New York, describes marijuana as the "kindergarten" of narcotic addition among teen-agers.

Other officials close to the problem agree that the alarming nation-wide rise in the use of narcotics by juveniles can be traced, in part, to marijuana as a starting point.

The use of marijuana is widespread in all major cities, they say, but heroin, a far more dangerous habit-forming drug, ranks first in the choice of confirmed addicts.

In most instances they begin by smoking marijuana, then progress to heroin, another step toward eventual shattered health, possibly death.

Investigation shows that professional narcotics peddlers hang around schools, pick up acquaintance with pupils, then persuade them to use drugs.

Lieut. Bernard M. Boylan, head of the New York police narcotic squad, which currently is waging a relentless drive against drug peddlers, said:

"The peddlers who sell to school children are vicious and heartless.
You'll find them hanging out in candy stores, soda fountains, pool rooms and beer joints near the schools."

Once they get acquainted with the students, perhaps by buying them candy or a soda, they begin offering drugs—free at first.

As a typical approach, Boylan said, they will hand a youngster a marijuana cigarette, or "reefer."

"Here, try this," they urge. "It will make you feel better, give you a kick."

Soon they will substitute heroin capsules for the marijuana as providing an even greater thrill. Often within a matter of weeks the adolescent user becomes a confirmed addict, condemned to a life of misfortune.

AMERICA'S BEAUTY SPOTS TO BE SHOWN

Rev. Harold C. Koch Plans Travelogue for Wednesday Evening

SOME NATIONAL PARKS

The Rev. Harold C. Koch, pastor of Bristol Methodist Church, will show more than a 100 natural color views of America's western parks and other beauty spots at eight p. m. tomorrow, in the main Sunday School room of the church.

Some members of the congregation, who have visited these places, have requested to see the scenes photographed last summer by the Rev. Mr. Koch, with the result that it has been decided to have a viewing open to anyone interested in color photography and travel.

The scenes to be shown include the South Dakota Bad Lands; the famous Mount Rushmore Memorial of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt; South Dakota's Custer Park with its famous Needles; Wyoming's Devil's Tower and the Big Horn Mountains, Shoshone Canyon and William F. Cody dam with Buffalo Bill's famous equestrian statue, Yellowstone National Park, the Grand Tetons, the Garden of the Gods, Seven Falls of South Cheyenne Canyon, Royal Gorge, Rocky Mountain National Park with scenes from a highway that goes above 12,000 feet high, Lincolnia from Springfield, Ill., and a few beauty spots in Pennsylvania. The group includes 135 views.

Brief lines from the nature poets are combined with descriptions of the pictures to interpret the emotion felt upon seeing these majestic panoramas. No admission will be charged for the showing. A free will offering will be received from those who wish to give, which will be applied to the church indebtedness. An accompaniment of instrumental music will add to enjoyment of the presentation.

NO ANTI-RED GUERRILLAS

An old fallacy is cropping up in a new form as anti-communist forces again retreat in Korea. It is being repeated not only by communists, but also by Americans who arrived at the same conclusion independently. But it remains a fallacy.

In its original form last July, it ran something like this: The South Korean armies collapsed at the first attack; this shows that the South Korean people hated their government. Conversely, the easy victories of the communists showed that the North Korean people approved of their rulers.

Unfortunately for this thesis, it is not the popular side that is sure to win battles, but the one with more and better troops, generals and equipment. The surprised and half-armed South Koreans fled in panic at their first sight of tanks. This normal reaction proved nothing with respect to how they felt about their government.

Now this fallacy has appeared in a new form: U. S. forces are bothered by guerrillas; the communists aren't. Therefore the people like the communists and dislike the anti-communists. This attitude disregards the attitude of the Korean people as U. S. forces advanced, and ignores the one-way flight of refugees when the communists advance. It also shows a misunderstanding of guerilla warfare.

Except on a negligible scale, guerilla warfare has to be well organized to succeed. The communists have behind them generations of experience in organizing it, forcing cooperation by the use of terror where they cannot get it voluntarily. This experience has also taught them how to avoid being the victims of it when less skilled leaders try to organize resistance. Only when exceptional local conditions are particularly favorable to resistance do they fail to crush it promptly.

There are other reasons that add to the explanation of the difference in guerilla activity in North and South Korea. But two simple factors are enough in themselves to explain why U. S. forces were not able to duplicate the communists' organization of guerilla warfare in Korea:

1. They didn't know how.
2. They weren't ruthless enough.

A PITIFUL HOST

Reminiscent of the people of France, plodding in weariness and panic along the highways ahead of the hordes of despotism in 1950, are the 2,000,000 refugees of Korea. If U. S. forces evacuate Korea, this pitiful host will be left to the mercy of the conquering hordes. These hordes are already hungry and starving.

This is one of the horrors of war as it has always been, except that war is becoming more barbaric because of its totalitarian nature and its expansiveness. Where the hostages of fate once represented a region, they now include the population of a whole nation and sometimes several nations.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1950
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Democrats and Republicans both had their troubles this year when it came to the chore of assigning committee seats in organizing the new Congress. The behind-the-scenes maneuvering made interesting background on the workings of our national legislature.

For example, there was the case of the Democratic seat on the House Ways and Means Committee, which finally went to Rep. Walter Granger, of Utah. Oil interests had been actively promoting, for that seat, Rep. Tom Steed, of Oklahoma. Steed, a former newspaperman and a capable legislator, had pretty much gone down the line for the Administration as a member of the House Labor Committee during the last Congress. Nevertheless, the House leadership had the knife out for him; they approached, and were turned down, by three other Democrats before Granger finally agreed to be their candidate.

Overtures then were made to Steed to withdraw his candidacy; but he refused, saying he wasn't going to quit and leave his backers holding the bag. A showdown vote of the House Democratic membership finally gave the job to Granger.

Then there's the story of the floundering in connection with the Republican seat on the important Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which finally went to Sen. Charles Tobey, of New Hampshire. That one begins last November when Sen. Wayne Morse, of Oregon, flushed with his new victory at the polls, returned to Washington and announced in a loud voice that he wanted, and expected to get, a seat on the Foreign Relations Committee. He produced a letter of support for his candidacy from Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, the GOP's top man on that committee.

But Morse is a strong internationalist, a strong supporter of the Truman Administration on foreign policy. More conservative Republicans looked around for a less internationally-minded GOP Senator with higher seniority than Morse whom they could back for the post. Sen. Homer Capehart, of Indiana, was considered. So was Sen. Guy Cordon, but he was loath to take the seat away from his fellow-Oregonian.

Meanwhile, Sen. George Aiken, of Vermont, another strong internationalist, announced that he, too, wanted the job—and he had seniority over Morse, who by this time had become somewhat a forgotten man. Sen. Owen Brewster, of Maine, a conservative who outranks Aiken, then began putting out feelers for the post and it looked as though he would get it.

But two days before the new Congress convened, Sen. Tobey threw a monkey wrench into those plans by coming back to the Capitol and stating publicly that if anybody with more seniority than Sen. Aiken tried to take the Foreign Relations job, then he, Tobey, would take it himself. Only two Republican Senators outrank Tobey in seniority—Vandenberg, already ranking GOP member of the Committee, and Sen. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire. No love is lost between Bridges and his colleague, Tobey; but Bridges is top Republican on both the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, and he did not want to give up either to become the junior member of Foreign Relations—especially, it was reported, as he would have to work under Chairman Tom Connally, of Texas, for whom he does not have much respect. So the job finally went to Tobey.

House Republicans also had a bit of organizational trouble in the form of a revolt against continuing

Rep. Les Arends, of Illinois, in his job as GOP whip of the House. It broke out behind the closed doors of a secret meeting of the Republican Committee on Committees.

The attack was based entirely on the contention that Arends, one of the most genial and generally liked members of the House, spends more time on the golf course than he does in the House, and that the party whip—whose primary job is to see that members are on hand to vote—should pay closer attention to his official knitting.

The revolt was quelled by a plea from Republican leader Joseph W. Martin for party unity. Arends, who was not present at the meeting, was re-elected. Martin a few hours later was seen late-a-tete with Arends, apparently giving him a fatherly lecture about attending to his duties.

ery and pain—an unhappy outcast among normal people.

If unable to beg, borrow or steal the money to get the drug, the teenage addict may become a peddler himself to assure himself a supply. Many have been arrested working in the school and among those of their own age. Just the other day, in New York, a 14-year-old peddler-addict was picked up.

In this way addiction is spreading in schools at an alarming rate. Many average citizens, medical authorities warn, are unaware of the harmful effects of marijuana. They labor under the delusion that the weed is just another intoxicant, no more dangerous than a drink of whiskey.

Just the opposite is true. Case histories recite numerous instances of crimes of violence incited by marijuana, known botanically as cannabis sativa, a plant belonging to the hemp family.

Cited as classic example is the case, some years ago, of a young Oklahoma City bellboy, Carl Murphy, as recorded in the files of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

Murphy, described by his employers as sober, industrious and never causing any trouble, smoked a small dose of marijuana with another boy in a hotel bedroom.

"He then left the hotel and walked to the federal building," states the Bureau record. "On the street he met three sailors, one of whom he hit in the neck. He struck a small boy whom he met on the sidewalk."

"Murphy then went to the federal building and took charge of an army recruiting office."

"When Stanton Smith, the building guard, was called to remove Murphy, a fight ensued. Murphy seized the gun from the guard and shot him, killing him instantly. He then placed the gun on a chair and walked down the hall, singing. He engaged in another fight, but was finally subdued and placed in jail."

Murphy, subsequently convicted and sentenced to ten years in prison, was unable to talk coherently for more than two days, the record states, and could remember nothing that happened after he left the hotel. His mind, he said, was a complete blank.

There are hundreds of cases of crimes and violence and sexual promiscuity committed under the influence of marijuana. Every large city has its sordid records of young boys and girls who, if they did not turn to crime, were wrecked morally and physically by dope.

Medical experts who have studied drug effects contend that a report a few years ago by a committee appointed by the late Mayor Firelo LaGuardia in New York, minimizing the harmfulness of marijuana, did untold damage. The harmful effects of this report, whitewashing the evil of marijuana, is still felt in New York, enforcement agencies say.

The Federal Commissioner of Narcotics, H. J. Anslinger, took exception to the report, pointing out that its publication was likely to encourage the use of marijuana in the face of an abundance of contrary evidence on the danger of the drug.

Falls To "Iron Out" Basic Defense Errors

FALLS TOWNSHIP, Jan. 23.—Falls township director of Civil Defense, Frank B. Davenport, Sr., announces receipt of word from civil defense coordinator Col. A. M. Heritage, Doylestown, concerning various duties of the defense chairman in this area.

On Feb. 13, Falls township will join with Philadelphia and other areas surrounding it in an exercise to iron out basic errors.

Permission has been granted by Charles E. Steiner, chief of Falls Township Fire Co., to hold an important meeting on Jan. 31st at eight p. m. for the chairman and committee of all the defense divisions in Falls.

The commonwealth has a copy of instructions pertaining to the public air raid warning signals which follows: The two-stage public warning code will be used to announce imminent attack and the subsequent all clear; the red-alert public warning signal will be of three minutes duration, and will consist of fluctuation or warbling signals of varying pitch by sirens, or a series of short blasts by horns or whistles. The "all clear" signal will be a series of three, steady, one-minute blasts by sirens, horns or whistles, interrupted by silent periods of two minutes each. The township will abide by these instructions.

Falls Township has set up a series of siren alarm units as follows and expects to install two more in places that require them in the immediate future: fire station, Charles E. Steiner, 'phone 7819; King's farm, R. D. No. 1, Fred Watts, 'phone 7177; U. S. Steel Co. River road, R. D. No. 4, W. T. Lawson, 'phone 7114; Warner Company, VanSciver plant, Frank Willis, 'phone 7676.

COMMUNICATION

Editor, The Courier:
On reading in your paper the account of the dedication of the new building of the Sons of Italy which took place last Sunday, I was greatly surprised and shocked to see that the writer of the article did not even mention the name of Mr. Angelo DiRenzo, who was one of the principal founders of the Pietro Metastasio Lodge in Bristol, and who was the only president holding that title for many consecutive years. He was elected and re-elected again and again, and this undoubtedly was due to his ability, likeable personality and unselfish attitude towards the members of his Lodge. It is a well-known fact, that he was also the architect as well as the builder of their first building and he put in many hours of unselfish work and time in its erection.

How thoughtless that the name of the late Angelo DiRenzo, one of the former prime leaders of Metastasio Lodge, should have been omitted and so soon forgotten by its members and the orators on this festive occasion.

Reception for 60 Follows The Henry-Hibbs Wedding

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 23.—To the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March at the hour of two on Saturday in Cornwells Methodist Church, Miss Elva Hibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Hibbs, was united in marriage to Mr. James Henry, grandson of Mrs. Sarah Henry, Andalusia. The Rev. Thornton Lobb officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride was gown in traditional white satin. She carried a white Bible on which rested a white orchid. The sole attendant was a sister of the bride, Mrs. Grover Keith, Bristol. Her selection was a gown of orchid, and a bouquet of yellow blossoms was carried. Mr. Grover Keith was the best man.

Organ melodies were rendered by Miss Elizabeth Bogarde. Mr. Harry V. Hibbs gave his daughter in marriage.

A reception, with 60 attending, took place in Bristol. The bride is a graduate of Bensalem high school, class of '44. She is employed in the office of Badenhausen Corp., here. Mr. Henry served with the U. S. Navy in World War II. He is employed by Rohm & Haas Co., Bristol.

Following a trip, the newlyweds will reside in Croydon.

Model Club Federation Has Victory Banquet

Fifty-two members of the Bucks County Federation of Model Clubs enjoyed the first annual victory banquet held by that organization on Saturday evening at the Hatboro Hotel.

Past President of the Academy of Model Aeronautics Everett Angus, and C. C. Prowell, district manager of Plymouth Motor Corp., were guest speakers. They praised Bucks County Federation of Model Clubs on the job it did during 1950 to promote the model hobby among the youth of this area and its help in conducting the large Plymouth-sponsored model airplane contest at Johnsville Air Field on July 9th.

Prizes for those who won the greatest number of awards in contests sponsored by the federation were awarded to the following: Junior age class (up to and including 15 years)—1st, David Baker, Newportville; 2nd, Albert Abrams, Jr., Bristol; 3rd, Eugene Huber, Quakertown; senior age class (16 to 20 years)—1st, William Cronz, Quakertown; 2nd, Paul Karp, Bristol; 3rd, James VanSant, Eddington; open age class (21 and older)—1st, Clarence Wells, Croydon; 2nd, Helen Horn, Hatboro; 3rd, Horace Ott, Hatboro.

Following the banquet there was a discussion by leaders of the various clubs on ways to make the federation's activities even better in 1951.

Members of sponsoring organizations of several of the Bucks County Clubs were also present.

St. Francis Vocational School

EDDINGTON, Jan. 23.—Last week the boys at St. Francis had an opportunity to see at close range one of the activities which the sale of the famous Christmas seals helps to carry on. The truck of the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society backed up and unloaded its portable X-ray equipment for a check of the boys on the "ounce of prevention" principle. Each one stepped up to have his picture taken in order to see if his physiological profile was a healthy one. Each was anxious to make a clean chest of it.

On Saturday afternoon a busload of honor boys visited West Catholic Boys High School in Philadelphia to see and hear their rendition of Victor Herbert's famous "Sweethearts." All agreed that it was a very pleasant afternoon and a good performance. They came back home singing as proof that the show left them in good spirits.

In the evening, Norman O'Donnell, who takes a troupe of entertainers to visit various groups, including armed service centers, brought some of his entertainers to St. Francis and treated the boys to a very enjoyable evening.

PINDAR TIED WITH WALLICK FOR SCORING LEAD

Joe Pindar, of Profy's, and "Bill" Wallick, of Franklin, are deadlocked for the leadership in individual scoring of the Bristol Basketball League. Both have hit the cords for a total of 76 points.

However, Pindar has made his points in five games while Wallick has participated in six contests.

There is also a tie for third place in the circuit between John Paone, of Luciano Brothers, and "Bill" Butz, of Cornwells' Boys Club. The latter has played in but four games.

The leaders:

Player	Team	Pts.
Pindar, Profy's	76	76
Wallick, Franklin	76	76
Paone, L. B.	24	18
Butz, C. B.	24	18

Warriors Ready To Meet Bulldogs Tonight

Still clinging to hopes of retaining the Lower Bucks County championship, Bristol High will meet the Morrisville Bulldogs tonight on the local floor. There will be a preliminary game at 7:30 o'clock between the junior varsity teams of the schools.

The Warriors have won one and lost one in league competition and must capture tonight's fracas to remain in the running for the crown as two defeats practically eliminates a team from the running.

Both Bristol and Morrisville are having poor seasons. In fact, Coach Jerry Bloom is having the worst season of his career as his basketball team has won but one game out of ten. Morrisville's record to date is three wins and six losses.

psychiatric wards in general hospitals.

(3) Integration of the eastern and western psychiatric institutes at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh into the mental health framework.

"There already is an overwhelming demand for every phase of our educational program," he said.

"We have made available selected literature on all aspects of mental hygiene," he said. "There are also motion pictures, discussion guides for civic groups, transcriptions for radio broadcasts, plays indicating life situations and how to meet them and a circulating library of books on mental health for loan to teachers, ministers, general practitioners, social workers and other community leaders."

"The idea," he pointed out, "is for people to learn to be aware of what problems they must meet in life situations so they don't get too excited or depressed."

Emphasis has been placed, he added, on psychological problems of adolescents, marriage counsel and how to take old age gracefully.

The material ranges from technical data, he said, to comic books.

"Community leaders have been pretty well oriented on mental health needs," Bengs said. "Now we want to get to individuals."

Locally - sponsored forums for public airing of the problem will get under full swing throughout the commonwealth next spring, he said. The State will pay the fees of nationally-known speakers.

Discussion institutes already have been planned, he said, in Reading, Bradford and Johnstown, as well as localities in Washington and Westmoreland counties.

The educational program is guided by the State Welfare Department's Division of Community Services.

(Tomorrow - Psychiatric wards in general hospitals.)

Young Women Urged To Apply for Commissions

Many vacancies currently exist for young women of the Lower Bucks County area who are desirous of obtaining positions as commissioned officers in the U. S. Air Force. It was announced today by S/Sgt. C. F. Kinsey, local WAC/WAF Recruiter.
